Προφίλ:

Dr Myria Kkali is an Associate Professor and the Academic Director at CIM Business School in Nicosia. Her academic interests include online consumer behaviour, societal marketing as well as contemporary marketing challenges. Dr Kkali received her Ph.D. from the Nottingham University Business School, where she worked as a Teaching Assistant between 2012-2016. Since returning to Cyprus, Dr Kkali has been working with the CIM Business School.

She held the position of Teaching Assistant at the Nottingham University Business School during the period 2012-2016 where she conducted her Doctoral research to obtain a PhD in Business and Management specializing in Marketing. He has developed a research direction in the field of Data Marketing and specifically in the methods of communication and understanding (sensemaking and sensegiving) between Data Analysts and Marketers in the business world. He has presented at Academic Conferences and educational seminars.

Dr. Kkali has taken a keen interest in bridging the gap between academia and industry and has published a number of articles in the CIM Research Centre's Business Bulletin. He has also delivered training seminars and participated in consulting projects.

Alongside her academic career, she is also active in the Non-Governmental sector through her role as Communication and Management Officer of the Non-Profit Organization Sistema Cyprus.
